CAMPAIGN DESCRIPTION/OBJECTIVES/GOALS

PROJECT DESCRIPTION

The 2007 Route 7/Route 15 interchange marketing campaign was designed to promote Connecticut Department of Transportation (ConnDOT) Commuter Services, and to promote assistance to employers not currently engaged with other transportation programs or offices. Coordinated by the South Western Regional Planning Agency, the campaign included direct telephone contact using a discussion guide (Appendix A), and was implemented by a team consisting of ConnDOT, and ConnDOT Commuter Services representatives from MetroPool, Rideworks, and 2Plus (Appendix B). The campaign ran from the last week of July through mid-September, 2007.

The campaign was budgeted at $25,000. Funding was included in the 2007 Statewide Ridesharing Project (# 0170-2709; see Work plan Appendix C).

The campaign's target group included 442 businesses in the general area of the Routes 7/15 interchange in Norwalk (see Appendices D & E).

OBJECTIVES

The project was designed to inform employers about available ConnDOT transit & ridesharing options; to deliver ConnDOT transit & ridesharing information to employers; and to promote ConnDOT Commuter Services programs with emphasis on assistance to employers in commuter trip planning.

GOALS

- Assess area business transportation needs
- Gauge awareness of ConnDOT-sponsored ridesharing services
- Measure interest in employer promotion of carpool, vanpool, bus, rail, telecommuting, and tax benefit commuting options
- Identify at least 75 businesses interested in ConnDOT-sponsored alternative commute modes
- Identify 110 persons who are initially interested in ConnDOT-sponsored services
 - o Enroll at least ten of that subset into carpool, vanpool, bus, or rail services
- Document and evaluate the program

RESULTS SUMMARY

Business Needs Assessment/Interest

Nearly two-thirds of the businesses contacted reported being interested in information about ConnDOT's commuting services for their employees. Interest levels varied but were high for specific individual services. The highest interest level was in promoting shuttle service from the train stations. The one exception to the high interest levels was telecommuting with a 12% interest level.

Awareness of ConnDOT Ridesharing Services

Only 27% of businesses reported awareness that ConnDOT offers transportation services. But nearly all (93%) were aware of at least one ConnDOT-sponsored service.

Identify 110 Persons Interested in Services/Enroll Ten

The 124 businesses participating in the initial telephone meetings represent nearly 3,500 employees. The 110/10 goals are expected to be significantly exceeded in the follow-up/fulfillment stages with these employers, which is ongoing among MetroPool, Rideworks, and 2Plus.

Document & Evaluate the Program

This report summarizes the Merritt 7 campaign findings, offers an analysis and discussion of the effort, and presents conclusions and recommendations. Appendices provide the project team participants; related scope-work plan; area map; list of businesses contacted; relevant ConnDOT services & links; contact referrals; and telephone meeting feedback form.

FINDINGS

Employer Contacts

- First attempts to contact all 442 employers were made (100%)
- Interviews were completed with 124 businesses (28%) (see Appendix F). The remaining 318 were either not interested or did not respond to messages left (follow-ups could be made in a second phase of the campaign, but time expired before any follow-ups could be made within ConnDOT's time limit)
- 81 businesses (65%) were interested in ConnDOT-sponsored ridesharing services
- The 124 businesses represent nearly 3,500 total employees

Employer Awareness

- 27% of the employers interviewed were aware of ConnDOT-sponsored ridesharing services
- 93% of employers were aware of at least one of the transportation services sponsored by ConnDOT (see Appendix G):

Metro North	93%
Norwalk Wheels	65%
Easy Street	50%
Norwalk Commuter Connection	42%
Danbury Branch Line	38%
Route 7 Link	31%
Telecommute Connecticut	19%
NuRide	13%

Employer Interest

- Areas of Interest:
 - o Promoting shuttle service to train (86%)
 - o Carpool (49%)
 - o Vanpool (49%)
 - o Commuter Tax Benefit (48%)
 - o Norwalk Transit District (48%)
 - o Bus (46%)
 - o Rail (44%)
 - o Telework (12%)
- The campaign generated 160 individual requests for more information on ConnDOT-sponsored ridesharing services, with an average of two requests per company
- Among the 160 requests, 87 responses were sent to MetroPool; 58 to 2Plus; and 15 to Rideworks (see Appendix H)

FINDINGS ... CONTINUED

• Initial action on the 160 requests for more information is broken out as follows:

	Total	160	(100%)
0	No longer/not interested	17	(11%)
0	Will re-contact	39	(24%)
0	Left contact information	11	(7%)
0	Meeting/presentation held	6	(4%)
0	Set up meeting(s)	19	(12%)
0	Provided requested information	68	(42%)

- MetroPool has generated 34 new corporate clients, representing over 900 employees
- 2Plus has scheduled 16 vanpool meetings, and has already delivered presentations on vanpooling at six employer sites
- Rideworks provided requested information to two employers and left contact information/website reference with 11 employers

OBSERVATIONS

Following are team members' observations (random order) on issues raised in preimplementation discussions and during the campaign itself:

- Employers expressed no concerns/complaints about receiving multiple calls from separate ConnDOT Commuter Services representatives
- Geographic definitions should be flexible, incorporating local Transportation Demand Management area expertise. The only specific geographic limitation should be state boundaries. In defining study areas, rigidity should be avoided, thus allowing inclusion of businesses/business segments important to the area that might otherwise be excluded simply because of an overly-specific geographic definition
- Smaller businesses had believed that ConnDOT wasn't interested in them, and were pleased to learn that ConnDOT wanted their input, thus creating a significant amount of good will toward ConnDOT in this business sector
- There was a significant level of response to voicemail messages left from initial calls, indicating strong employer interest in learning about transportation solutions for their employees
- Follow-ups by ConnDOT Commuter Services representatives should be more than just leaving voicemail messages – personal contact should be made to build and reinforce positive relationships
- Despite some initial concerns about including retail, restaurants, medical offices, government offices, and banks, these segments yielded generally positive responses and should not be excluded from future campaigns
- Sole proprietors and real estate offices are low-potential categories. If real estate offices are contacted in future, offering services to their clients rather than to their employees may be more productive
- The determination of whether or not an employer prospect is an appropriate "fit" is best made after direct personal contact is made
- The relatively high completion rate notwithstanding, summer (because of vacations) and Friday afternoons are not optimum times for contact

OBSERVATIONS ... CONTINUED

- The Meeting Report feedback form (see Appendix I) can be improved to include more detail (e.g., allowing room for more "richness" in terms of the dialogue; analyzing aspects of the form to determine areas most helpful; recommendations for further follow-up)
- Each organization participating in the project should designate a specific individual as the point of contact for that organization to insure optimum coordination

CONCLUSIONS

In seeking to identify areas in which to target for alternative commute modes, the data collected and the team's observations lead to the following (random order) conclusions:

- The Merritt 7 area has strong potential for increasing participation in ConnDOTsponsored transit & ridesharing services, with two-thirds of employers interested in more information on transportation for their employees
- While awareness that ConnDOT offers transportation solutions is relatively low at 27%, awareness of most of the specific programs themselves (e.g., Metro North, Easy Street, etc.) is strong. The Merritt 7 campaign has been a useful, important strategy in increasing the awareness level about ConnDOT's interest and involvement in employee transportation solutions
- Employer interest in promoting ConnDOT-sponsored transit & ridesharing programs is extremely high
- The personalized, localized model used for the Merritt 7 project yields positive results: it generates good will for ConnDOT, communicates ConnDOT's interest in helping smaller businesses promote ConnDOT-sponsored transit & ridesharing services, and enables employers to offer commuting solutions to employees without any incremental cost/effort on the part of the employer
- The ConnDOT Commuter Services team approach has proved very successful due to six primary factors: up-front team buy-in; a comprehensive pre-implementation process which developed the campaign's scope; periodic team meetings to review progress and adjust activities; immediate follow-up and delivery of services; the paradigm shift to a sales/customer service/relational format from prior research-oriented surveys with little to no follow-up by vendors; and oversight by the South Western Regional Planning Agency
- A key factor in the success of the project was identification of a project manager for each participating organization. Without a designated project manager, a campaign can suffer from less participation by the organization, less satisfaction with the project by that organization, and fewer positive results for its functional area
- This marketing/sales strategy appears to work effectively as either a single, stand-alone communications tool, or in concert with other ConnDOT efforts (e.g., statewide media campaigns)

CONCLUSIONS...CONTINUED

• Although interest in telecommuting was low, employers expressed interest in learning more about telecommuting, indicating potential for increasing that interest level with continued contact/education

OPPORTUNITIES

Following the Statewide Ridesharing Work Plan Goal to "Identify opportunities for TDM growth in business areas," following are opportunities stemming directly from the data collected and the project team's observations and conclusions:

- Continue the normal course-of-business follow-up/fulfillment process with the employers contacted
- Follow-up in three to six months with employers who requested information
- Extend contacts in Phase II of Merritt 7 i.e., expanding beyond the Phase I list of 442 businesses. There are more than 1,000 businesses remaining to be contacted in the area; and more than half of employers contacted expressed interest in ConnDOT's "flexible" commuter services (carpool; vanpool; tax benefit; etc.). Where ConnDOT's "fixed" commuter services (bus; rail) are available, these receive strong interest as well
- Utilize the Merritt 7 model for a similar campaign in Stamford
- Utilize the Merritt 7 model for similar campaigns Statewide
- Develop and implement "Try Transit" incentives for available transit services with capacity. This program can be modeled after the "ten trip" CT Transit promotional program in effect in Hartford, and can effectively support marketing and outreach efforts ranging from Merritt 7-like campaigns to community group and faith-based organization outreach to travel training sessions

APPENDIX E - TARGETED BUSINESSES

Target Group Locations: The target group included 442 businesses within the general area of the Route 7/Route 15 intersection in Norwalk, Connecticut.

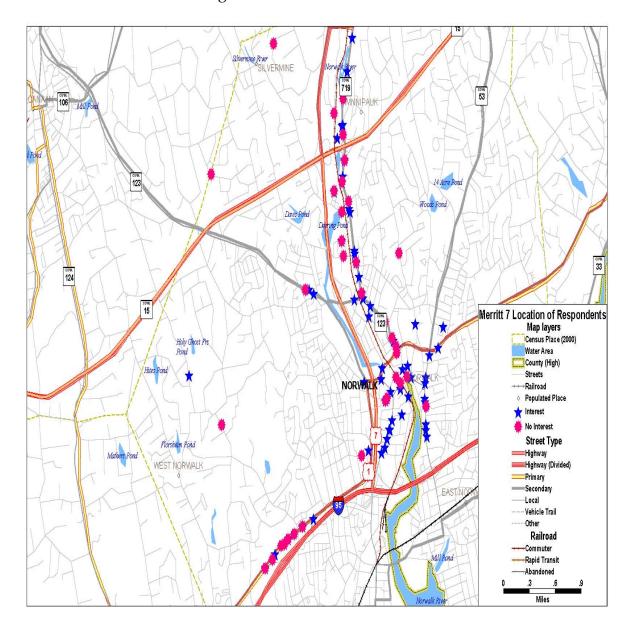

Reached Group Locations: The reached group included 124 businesses. One hundred and twenty-four businesses completed the discussion format survey with 81 interested in ConnDOT sponsored alternative commuting services and 43 with no interest.

Blue stars are indicative of businesses with an interest in these services. Ping splash circles are indicative of businesses with no interest in these services.

It appears that businesses along East and West Avenues paralleling the Norwalk River South of Route 1 and North of I-95 have a higher interest in ConnDOT alternative commute services than do businesses scattered along other streets or routes.

 At this point in the campaign we are focusing on first contacts to all employers, there is still great potential for reaching the remainder of the businesses in further attempts as the peak vacation season winds down.

Additional Noteworthy Items:

- We are finding that the relationship-building type of discussion we are currently having with employers is more time-intensive than previous campaigns. However, the foundation is being effectively established for future successful follow-up. Additionally, the current approach is yielding immeasurable "good will" for ConnDOT.
- This campaign is increasing awareness, primarily among the relatively untouched market of small businesses, for the DOT's Commuter Assistance Program. This is evidenced by the fact that 86% of the businesses we met with this week were previously unaware of the services offered/supported by the DOT.
- Because of the relational aspect of the meetings being held, we are seeing interest and awareness being raised, even when employers don't choose to receive additional information at this time.
- Many of the employers we contact say early in the meeting that they are "too small". When we explain our new approach to contacting all size employers they seem to understand how we can connect employees from different employers to create vanpools and carpools.
- There is a general sense of appreciation on the part of employers, even those who decline further information, for:
 - 1. Being given the opportunity to share their commuting experiences
 - Being able to give feedback to the DOT regarding their own awareness of services offered
 - 3. Receiving an offer of partnership with the DOT
 - 4. Having the opportunity to receive further information that will benefit their employees.
- The contact list is grouped by type-of-business. This week there was a heavy focus on retail businesses which are somewhat less receptive to alternative commuting options because of their varying schedules and shifts. However, many retailers do see potential in these commuting services which is supported by their requests for further follow-up.
- Our cooperation as a commuter assistance team is being evidenced by measurable results.
 MetroPool has already signed two additional agents as a direct result of this campaign.
- The establishment of concrete response tracking has enabled each agency to quickly follow-up on the referrals provided, allowing the relationship established with employers in the initial meeting to be built upon by other members of the team. Employers are remembering the initial phone call/meeting and are anticipating the further contact.
- The previous two weeks have included some additional administrative focus as we created the new meeting report/referral format and polished the process of distributing referrals and planning for effective follow-up. We anticipate the pace of contact will elevate somewhat as we continue to meet with employers throughout the remainder of the campaign.

 We are still focusing on first contacts to all employers, and there is still great potential for reaching the remainder of the businesses in further attempts as the peak vacation season winds down.

Additional Noteworthy Items:

- This week was clearly impacted by the "summer lull" and we found that MANY of the employers were out of town on vacations. However, we were able to determine the correct point of contact at many of these businesses which will make additional contacts more efficient.
- This week's contacts included a larger percentage of single and two-person offices which seem to represent a group of employers that are less inclined to seek information on commuter transportation alternatives. The businesses included many small marketing offices, import businesses, and several small non-profit agencies. Still noteworthy, even the smallest organizations do not express any problem with our contact and offer of information and assistance.
- It was exciting to see the positive responses that MetroPool has had in following-up on the information requests we have received in the past two weeks as a result of the Merritt 7 campaign. Being able to track follow-up response is a significant benefit to the changes being made in how we approach this campaign. We anticipate this to continue and exceed all previous efforts.
- We continue to find that even when employers do not request additional information, they are very receptive to the contacts and are appreciative of the partnership being offered by ConnDOT's team of commuter service representatives.
- Based on feedback from the team working on this campaign, we have added a discussion point to our meetings which requests information on the working hours of the employees. This will enable NTD to plan for additional commuter shuttle space and assist in matching potential vanpool participants.
- Response continues to be favorable to the relational approach in making contacts. We continue to find that employers are pleasantly surprised to know that their small business has a voice with the DOT, and that there is an effort being made to partner with them to improve the commuting experience for themselves and their employees.
- Discussion between 2Plus and Nancy Carroll (Norwalk Transit District) resulted in discovering that the information provided in the meeting reports has valuable data for NTD in their planning. So, per their request, they will also be receiving the weekly report and the weekly batches of meeting reports which include information from both sets of employers – those who requested information and those who did not.
- As in previous weeks we are excited to see that while retail businesses traditionally have difficulty in effectively using alternative commuting options, we have had retail employers who not only express interest in learning about and utilizing the services presented, but who are, in fact, currently promoting carpooling!
- Finally, the length of our meetings with employers combined with summer schedules are contributing to a longer campaign schedule than originally expected. However, the results continue to be overwhelmingly positive and encouraging.

 We are completing first contacts to all employers, and will begin our focus on reaching the businesses we haven't yet made contact with this upcoming week. Traditionally, subsequent contacts proceed more quickly so we are anticipating continued success with the campaign.

Additional Noteworthy Items:

- This week was still prime vacation season, which we saw reflected in the lack of availability of employers, especially in the smaller offices. However, we were able to increase the number of contacts made this week.
- We are still learning that there are certain types of businesses which are more difficult to reach than others, and which have less inclination to seeking information on transportation options. For example, real estate offices generally have very few actual employees, and it's a business which requires the use of personal vehicles and typically has very irregular hours.
- Medical offices, on the other hand, have been very receptive to learning more about the alternatives which are available and have schedules that often allow employees to be perfect candidates for alternative commuting options.
- We frequently meet with employers who take the opportunity to share their ideas or vent their frustrations regarding the traffic situation in the area. It is gratifying to note that at the end of these conversations, the employers are pleased to have had the opportunity to be heard. We continue to see people end our meetings with a whole new appreciation for ConnDOTs efforts to reach out to them with possible solutions for the transportation issues their employees may have.
- Some examples of suggestions that we have heard from employers this week include re-opening the train station that was in downtown Norwalk and making I-95 a limited access highway.
- Overall, this campaign is still resulting in increasing the good will between the DOT and the employers in the Merritt 7 interchange area. Seeds are certainly being planted for further efforts and further success.
- So far our efforts have reached 2177 employees through this campaign! Each one of them has been represented by his/her employer and has been able to, in effect, share the experiences they have each day to and from the workplace.
 Additionally, each one will have access to further information on commuting options available to them.

PROGRESS REPORT #5 ... P2

Request Response Rate: 75 of the 117 total completed contacts requested further information (64%)

 We have completed first contacts with all 442 employers. We continue to see added success in meeting with employers as we re-contact those we were unable to reach in first attempts.

Additional Noteworthy Items:

- In the past we have not left voicemails, believing that live interaction was more productive. However, after creating a process for retrieving employers in our database, I began leaving voicemails (only when unable to contact employers directly) explaining why we were contacting them and leaving a callback number. We have had several employers respond to this and return calls! While first opportunity live interaction is certainly preferable, this is proving to be an effective way to make contact with employers who are particularly interested in providing their employees with alternative commuting methods.
- One example of this success was with Virgin Atlantic Airways. The employer returned my call and left a voicemail asking me to PLEASE call him back as they are very excited about being able to help their employees be more environmentally responsible and he VERY MUCH wanted to talk with me about transportation issues! They employ 80 people onsite and are already using telecommuting extensively. We are continuing our dialogue and I anticipate future success stories developing from this company's workforce.
- We continue to watch the trends relating to type of business and their response to our discussions. We've experienced very little outward "success" from 1-person businesses, in terms of requests for information. However, I am finding that they are often very receptive to our meetings and often have insightful input or suggestions. We might consider whether or not they need to be included in future projects based on these observations.
- Encouragement for our efforts is consistently given by the employers we meet with. One office manager said, "It's great that you are calling. It's so good to know that DOT is offering options for those who can use them."
- Throughout the campaign, there have been requests for written information about the options available. We inform them that they will be receiving exactly that from other commuter service representatives in their specialty areas. One employer this week suggested that DOT send this information to all employers in the M7 area on a regular basis.
- We query employers on their familiarity with the services and programs offered and/or supported by the DOT. We have found that 48% have heard of Easy Street Vanpools. 19% of employers have heard of Telecommute Connecticut. 12% of those questioned had heard of Nu-Ride incentive-based carpool program.
- This campaign continues to build a partnership between ConnDOT and the employers in the Merritt 7 Interchange area. Even the employers who choose not to receive any additional information are appreciative of the efforts DOT is making to reach out to them and their employees. We have reached 3032 employees in the course of this campaign, with more on the horizon!

 We have completed first contacts with all 442 employers. We continue to see added success in meeting with employers as we re-contact those we were unable to reach in first attempts.

Additional Noteworthy Items:

- Although this was a short week, we reached 431 additional employees through their employers. Throughout the campaign to date, we have reached 3,463 employees in the Merritt 7 Interchange area!
- This week some administrative time was spent reviewing the feedback reports from metropool and rideworks. We are encouraged by the positive response from the employers. The fact that the follow-ups are occurring within days of the initial meeting allows the information to remain fresh in the employer's mind which significantly increases their receptiveness to the requested information.
- Additionally, the teleconference on September 7th with Jim Stutz, Sue Prosi, Nancy Carroll, Theresa Fanelle and Cheryl Jones allowed the majority of the team to assess the project thus far, share lessons learned, and look ahead toward future follow-up and additional campaigns.
- We continue to receive call-backs from employers who have received a voicemail telling them of the three-fold purpose for the meeting. The three aspects are: to find out what the commute to/from work is like for their employees, to find out how well we have done so far in providing information on alternative forms of commuting, and finally to offer any information or services that they believe would be helpful to their employees.
- An additional administrative focus this week has been on developing the training model which will allow projects like this M7 campaign to continue on an even larger scale. The process and the skills to reach employers and successfully engage them in discussion and offer them information are transferable to other call center staff.
- One of the questions asked of the employers in every meeting is, "Before our conversation today, were you aware that the Connecticut Department of Transportation offers solutions for commuting employees?" 73% of employers have answered that question with a "no". This has been a perfect opportunity to reinforce the concept that ConnDOT does, indeed, desire to listen and respond to their issues and concerns regarding transportation issues. The amount of "good will" that is being fostered between the businesses in the M7 area and ConnDOT, while somewhat intangible, is certainly beneficial!
